WHO FIRST FOUND COLD.

I have talked with a dizes old pic heers, some of whom were with Marshall or Sutter at the time (Marshall or Sutter at the time (Marshall was at Coloma, and Sutter at New Helvetis), and have endeavised to learn the true secret of the find, but without success. Some of them say that Marshall found the first place of wild there that the first place of wild there that piece of gold; others that his little daughter found it; others, that Mrs Wimmer, who provided meals for the workmen at the mill, found it; and others, again, that Mrs. Wimmer's son found it. General Souter himself once told me that Marshall was the finder, and, although Sotter was not on the spot at the time, I am inclined to believe this the true story; for, while still fresh, it must have been related to Sotter with great minuteness. It is, however, avered on all hands, that, if Mrs. Wimmer did not find the sold what is a sold in the sold when the sold with the sold when the sold with the sold when the sold with the sold w find the gold, she was the first to determine its character.
